Talk:
Hey, is Uncle Bob wearing a jetpack!?

Abstract:
We will take a tour around the modern techniques of Android development (jetpack) and how they can be leveraged to keep your codebase clean and following good architectural principles

Speaker: Rafa Ortega

I started to work on Android around 2012, and stuck with it ever since with some small experiments along the way in cross-platform solutions such as React Native and Flutter. I really enjoy developing for Android using Kotlin.

I am passionate about software architecture, good coding principles, and clean code. I worked for two companies in Germany during 6 years (iExergy and trivago) and since almost 2 years I am back in Malaga where I have worked in Ciklum and more recently as part of the Android team at sync.

When I am not near a computer I like practicing sports (table tennis or padel are my favorites), playing the guitar and dancing.
